Ken Excuse me, Officer
Is Salisbury Road very far from here?

Policeman No, it isn't too far.
Go straight ahead and take the third road on the left.

Ken We're not lost this time, Ann.
Have you got the number?

Ann No, I haven't. You have.

Ken Oh, yes, that's right. It's number six.

Ann Look, number six is over there.

Ken Good afternoon, madam. Are you Mrs. Bennett?

Mrs. Bennett Yes, I am.

Ken I'm Ken Gibson and this is my wife, Ann.

Mrs. Bennett Oh, I see. Come in, come in.

Ken Is David in, please?

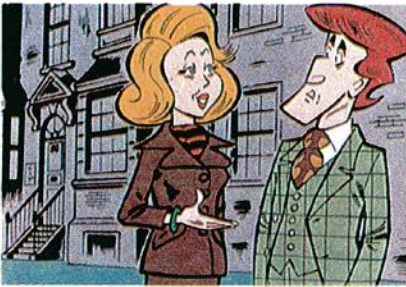

Mrs. Bennett Yes, he is. David — your friends are here.

a flat in Gloucester Place

Jim and Pat are in the street. They are on their way to Gloucester Place but they don't know where it is. Jim hasn't got a street map and so he asks a policeman. The policeman tells him to take the third road at the roundabout. They take the fourth instead of the third. They are lost again. At last they arrive at no. 80, Gloucester Place. A lovely landlady opens the door and shows them the flat which is on the second floor. There are two rooms, a bathroom and a kitchen, but there's no central heating. The rent is £ 18 a week. Jim likes the flat, but Pat thinks it's too expensive. They say they are sorry: this flat is not for them.
